About AAFB

Association of Arizona Food Banks

AAFB is a nonprofit organization dedicated to a hunger-free Arizona. Our mission is to develop solutions to end hunger through food banking, public policy, and innovation. We support our members and the statewide emergency food network with transportation and food distribution; lead efforts to improve childhood nutrition; engage in anti-hunger advocacy; and collaborate with partners on healthy initiatives.

working with food banks

Collectively, AAFB's five food bank members and their 1,000 supporting partners distributed 185 million pounds of food to Arizonans in need last year.

fresh produce initiative

Fresh fruits and vegetables made up 47 percent of the food our members distributed in 2017–2018, much of it donated or purchased from Arizona and surrounding communities. Over the past two years, we have increased the volume of fresh produce we distribute by nearly 70 percent. This initiative also reduces food waste by diverting healthy produce from landfills.

child & youth outreach

We work with schools and food service departments statewide to make school meals, summer meals, and after-school snacks more accessible and nutritious.

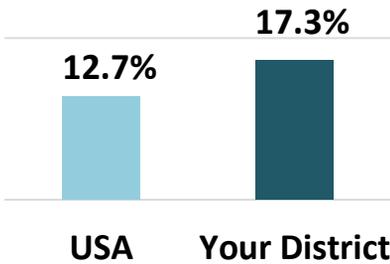

advocating to end hunger

We work with elected officials at the state and federal levels to raise awareness about the impact of legislation on hungry people and to offer solutions. We also partner with the public, nonprofit, and private sectors to end hunger.
